BY JUDGE KENNEDY

(By United Press)
Cheyenne, Wyo., March 14.—A temporary injunction today restrained the Mammoth Oil company, a Sinclair subsidiary, from drilling on Teapot Dome naval oil reserves, while presidential counsel were en route to Los Angeles to file similar proceedings against reserve No. 1, leased by E. L. Doheny.

Federal Judge T. Blake Kennedy granted the injunction at 4 p. m. mountain standard time yesterday, on petition of Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, counsel appointed by President Coolidge to file proceedings for cancellation of the oil reserve leases held by H. F. Sinclair and E. L. Doheny.

At the same time Kennedy appointed Admiral Joseph Straus and Albert E. Watts, vice-president of the Sinclair Consolidate Oil company, as joint receivers for Teapot Dome.

HUGE NARCOTIC RING IS BROKEN UP IN ST. CLOUD

ALLEGED LEADER OF CANADIAN-
TWIN CITY NARCOTIC RING
ARRESTED

FEDERAL AGENTS SEIZE BE-TWEEN $20,000 AND $30,000
WORTH OF DRUGS

(By United Press)
St. Cloud, March 14.—One of the leaders of a Canadian-Twin City narcotic syndicate was arrested here last night by federal agents from Minneapolis and St. Paul, posing as "dope fiends," to whom the man delivered between $20,000 and $30,000 worth of drugs.

He gave his name as Ben Oehler. Oehler is also accused of supplying the alleged drug ring, broken up here this week with the arrest of four physicians.

Minneapolis, March 14.—A trail of narcotics, which has found its way to small cities and towns all over southern Minnesota and Iowa, was blotted out today, federal agents announced.

Their statement followed the arrest in St. Cloud of Benjamin Oehler, described as the most elusive and expert narcotic peddler in the northwest.

They said they found on him cocaine, heroin and morphine valued at $20,000 and that they had evidence of a widespread traffic in the country district.

Other evidence said to be found on him included a list of customers in all parts of Iowa and southern Minnesota, according to the agents.

Oehler was caught in a trap laid by federal agents who got in touch with him through a tip that he was working out of Sioux City, Iowa. They arranged to meet him in St. Cloud, and when he drove in in a big touring car they met him as customers, paying $1,000 in marked money.

When searched in the St. Cloud county jail his pockets gave up the narcotics in glass vials and $2,300 cash. He is held in solitary confinement, while a companion to whom he gave a lift on the road, was released.

J. F. Breason, state narcotic enforcement chief, today sought a grand jury warrant against Oehler.

He said the arrest may mean conviction of a narcotic sale system extending from Minnesota and Iowa to Atlantic coast ports.

N. P. STATEMENT BY PRESIDENT

CHARLES DONNELLY REVIEWS
RAILWAY LAND GRANT
CASE

Charles Donnelly, president of the Northern Pacific, has made the following statement with regard to the Northern Pacific land grant case:

It would, of course, be idle to discuss in the press the questions concerning the Northern Pacific grant which have been raised in the letter addressed by the president to Senator Lenroot. All of the facts will be developed fully in the course of such inquiry as congress may institute, and pending this inquiry I will say just this:

The grand of lands to the Northern Pacific was made nearly sixty years ago. Construction was begun in 1870, and the railroad from Lake Superior to Puget Sound was completed more than forty years ago. The grant has been in course of administration ever since construction began, that is to say, for more than fifty years, and during that period every question now suggested by the government has been thoroughly considered, and adjudicated.

The railway company has always insisted that it involved a breach of faith for the government to attempt to withdraw, for forest reserve purposes, any part of the lands due to it under the grant, and eight years ago the government brought against the Northern Pacific, in the United States district court of Montana, a suit of which the effect was to settle this specific question. That court decided the case in favor of the railway company. The government appealed to the United States circuit court of appeals for the ninth district at San Francisco, and that court decided in favor of the railway company, all three of the judges concurring.

The government then appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States, and on April 11, 1921, that court decided in favor of the railway company. The present step is a plain attempt through some form of congressional action, to circumvent these decisions, and without conceding for one moment that congress can by any form of action affect rights which have vested in this way, we are, of course, at the command of congress and will be prepared to submit every fact which may be regarded as pertinent to the inquiry. And we shall expect to be as successful in satisfying congress of the merits of our case as we have been in satisfying the courts.

President Commutes Sentence of Rumely

(By United Press)
Washington, March 14.—President Coolidge has commuted the sentences of Dr. Edward A. Rumely and two other defendants, who were convicted under war time laws in connection with the purchase of the New York Evening Mail by the German government, from one year and one day to one year.

This commutation of the sentence was directed by the president in order that the defendants could be sent to Westchester, New York, penitentiary instead of the Atlanta penitentiary where it was first planned to send them.

The Westchester penitentiary accepts prisoners for sentences only up to one year.

Senate: Considers Norris constitutional amendment changing inauguration dates. Daugherty committee resumed hearings at 10 a. m. Teapot Dome committee resumes hearings at 10 a. m. House: Routine business.

Washington, March 14.—Judge Curtis Dwight Wilbur, of California, has been named secretary of the navy to succeed Edwin Denby and has accepted.

Judge Wilbur's nomination will be sent to the senate by President Coolidge at once.

The nomination was tendered him last night by the president. Judge Wilbur wired his acceptance immediately.

There will be no formal announcement from the White House concerning Judge Wilbur's acceptance, it was stated, but his nomination will be sent to the senate today.

C. Bascom Slemp, secretary to the president, announced receipt of Wilbur's telegram accepting the president's offer. Wilbur is chief justice of the California supreme court. He graduated from the naval academy at Annapolis and has always been much interested in naval affairs, despite the fact that his career was the law.

He will come to Washington as soon as the senate confirms him.

Wilbur, who recently spent some time in the south, was in Washington for a conference with the president about ten days ago.

He was strongly recommended by Senator Shortridge, California.

Judge William S. Kenyon refused late yesterday to become secretary of the navy.

Wilbur was born in Booneville, Iowa, March 10, 1867. He graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1888, but resigned from the navy in the same year, taking up the practice of law in Los Angeles, California, two years later.

His first public office was as chief deputy district attorney of Los Angeles, California, which he held between 1899 and 1903. In the latter year he was elected superior judge of the county, the position he held until 1918, when he was elected associate justice of the California supreme court.

Wilbur made a notable record as a superior judge by organizing the juvenile court laws.

He entered the supreme court in 1919 for a twelve year term, and was elevated to chief justice last year.

Wilbur married Olive Doolittle of St. Paul in 1898.

He has a brother, Ray Lyman Wilbur, who is president of Stanford university and head of the American Medical association.

Judge Curtis Dwight Wilbur, of the California supreme court, wired today to President Coolidge that he was ready to accept appointment as secretary of the navy.

"I can only say," Judge Wilbur declared, "that I will give my best to my country, and to the president and to the navy."

"I have some definite ideas of what the navy department should be and do, but just now it is hardly the time to express these views."

Wilbur said the offer was "not a complete surprise."

Means, former department of justice agent, today-bared before the senate's investigating committee the details of alleged secret investigation of cabinet members and congressional collections of huge sums of money and other clandestine activities which he said were directed by Jesse Smith, Daugherty's intimate friend.

Means' story formed an amazing sequel to the sketchy details of similar "deals" already outlined by Roxie Stinson Smith's divorced wife.

With breathtaking rapidity, Means made these "revelations" and "charges":

1. That he had collected $100,000 from a "Jap from the Mitsui company" in connection with the Standard Aircraft cases which were before the department of justice for prosecution and that he turned the money over to Jesse Smith. The aircraft case was afterward transferred to the war department (Mrs. Smith yesterday told how Smith one time had seventy-five $1,000 bills.)

2. That the late President Harding had ordered him to investigate Secretary of the Treasury Mellon after reports reached Harding that Mellon had entered arrangements for the issuance of "certain permits."

3. That he had investigated Senators LaFollette, of Wisconsin, and Caraway, of Arkansas, and Bruce, of Maryland, at the request of Jesse Smith—LaFollette, however, had introduced his resolution for investigation of the Teapot Dome lease.

4. That he had once been suspended as a department agent after a "cabinet officer" had protested that he was "too active in investigating oil matters in Mexico."

5. That he was assigned to investigate sale of models of United States airplanes to the Japanese government.

SENATE OIL PROBE ADJOURNS TO TUESDAY

Washington, March 14.—The senate oil committee today was forced to take an adjournment until Tuesday because of the indisposition of Senator Walsh, Montana, chief investigator.

Ladd then adjourned the committee to meet Tuesday, when witnesses subpoenaed to testify today will be heard.

PROPOSED NAT'L THIRD PARTY IS TO BE ENDORSED

FARMER-LABOR STATE CONVEN-TION ASSEMBLED AT ST.
CLOUD TODAY

MAY HAVE FIGHT ON PRESIDEN-TIAL ENDORSEMENT,
IS OUTLOOK

(By United Press)
St. Cloud, March 14.—The proposed national third party will be endorsed by the farmer-labor state convention today. Whether a presidential candidate will be endorsed was a question not yet settled when the delegates met at 10 a. m.

Any presidential endorsement, however, is likely to go to U. S. Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin.

Unless the convention is in the mood to vote on endorsements for state officials, there will be a fight on the presidential endorsement.

This is the battle plan of friends of Charles A. Lindbergh of Little Falls, Minnesota, seeking the endorsement for governor. Tom Davis, Minneapolis, also a farmer-labor candidate for governor, does not want the convention to make an endorsement. Lindbergh adherents want to settle the fight here and now.

The big battle of the convention is over endorsement of the new farmer-labor federation launched yesterday in Minneapolis, by the nonpartisan and the working people's nonpartisan political league.

Within these organizations are the radicals who want to steal the farmer-labor party from Fred A. Pike, state chairman of the present state convention. The farmer-labor federation crowd, headed by William Mahoney, St. Paul, want to abolish the state committee and organize the party which has legal standing in Minnesota on the same basis as the nonpartisan league has been functioning.

The nonpartisan league federation sent a big delegation to the convention, and a fight at the outset over seating of delegates was in prospect.

WILD DEMONSTRATION FOR SEN. LAFOLLETTE

St. Cloud, Minn., March 14.—The name of U. S. Senator Robert M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin, was received with a wild demonstration at the Minnesota farmer-labor convention as a third party presidential possibility today.

Cheering and stamping shook the armory when Fred A. Pike, chairman, eulogized the Wisconsin senator and assured the convention that LaFollette was in a receptive mood.

The spontaneous harmony over LaFollette, however, gave way immediately to a battle over the temporary chairmanship.

David H. Evans, of Tracy, was elected unanimously after a battle of more than an hour which at times became heated. Five others nominated by popular vote, withdrew before Evans was elected.

Chairman Pike got into a lot of trouble when he attempted to name John A. Baldix a temporary chairman. Several delegates questioned his right to make the nomination from the chair.

Pike read Robert's rules of order, but the delegates were suspicious. They voted for a call for nominations from the floor and the six were nominated.

Al G. Scott, Minneapolis socialist, withdrew in favor of Thomas Bolner. Bolner withdrew in favor of David H. Evans, of Tracy, and Scott reconsidered his withdrawal.

John Baldix, named by Chairman Pike, also withdrew in favor of Evans. William Mahoney, labor leader of St. Paul, also withdrew.

In a vote Evans won two to one over Scott. Scott then moved to make it unanimous for Evans. This

HIGH COURT ASSERTS BABY GUY
STILLMAN IS SON OF
BANKER

(By United Press)
New York, March 14.—The appellate division of the supreme court in Brooklyn today unanimously upheld the findings of Referee Gleason in the Stillman divorce case.

Gleason's findings were in favor of Mrs. Ann U. Stillman in her defense of the suit for divorce brought against her by James A. Stillman, former president of the National City bank.

"The findings of the court and the referee," the court's memorandum said, "that the plaintiff (Stillman) was guilty of adultery and not entitled to a judgment of divorce are amply supported by the evidence; in fact, it is undisputed and hence these findings are affirmed."

"So far as the question of legitimacy of the child (Baby Guy Stillman, whom the banker charged was the son of Fred Beauvais, Canadian 'Indian guide') is concerned, this court also affirms the findings of the court and referee are conclusive, being that the evidence fails to establish his illegitimacy."

John F. Brennan, attorney for Mrs. Stillman, said at his office in Yonkers he would make no move until he had received a copy of the decision.

Lawyers said the decision today means that in the eyes of the court Baby Guy Stillman is established as the lawful son of Stillman.

Men like Taylor, Reidpath, Half, Meredith and countless others as good, have been unable to lower the record hung up by Long in 1900. It is one of the oldest existing marks on the athletic books.

U. S. TO TAKE OVER ISLE ROYALE, HEART OF LAKE SUPERIOR

(By United Press)
Washington, March 14.—If Isle Royale, a virgin island in the heart of Lake Superior, becomes a national recreation area, one of the dreams of Secretary of the Interior Work will be realized.

Steps have already been taken by the secretary to procure the island for national park purposes. A portion of the land owned by the state of Michigan has been donated to the federal government and several private owners have informed the secretary of their disposition to follow the state's action. As soon as the entire acreage has been transferred by gift to the government, Secretary Work will recommend to the president that it be converted into a national monument.

The island has an area of 132,000 acres. It is 45 miles long and 9 miles wide. It lies almost in the center of the lake and is 35 miles from Duluth, Minn., and 18 miles from Port Arthur.

Once the transfer to the government is effected it is the plan to preserve the features of the island. Here among the stately trees the axe of the woodcutter has never been heard. Over the mossy banks and leaf-covered stretches roam herds of moose, wood-caribou and other animals which have never heard the report of the hunter's gun. In its 21 cool inland lakes and swift-flowing streams live many tribes who have never been emptied by the fisherman's bait. In the tree-tops are breeding places of innumerable wild fowl, migratory, song and insectivorous birds and gulls and terns.

Evidence of pre-historic mining and inhabitants have been uncovered in sections of the island. It is the only place known to man where chert-rocks (green stones) and thompsonites have been found. For many reasons, the island is of unusual scientific interest, and offers rare opportunities for research and study.

"This island, it seems to me," said Secretary Work, "fully measures up to national monument standards, and I have no doubt that it is qualified for a conspicuous place in the National park system. If practically all of the holdings can be secured for the United States, I will be pleased to exercise the power vested in me by law to accept the gift and recommend to the president that he establish a national monument to preserve the island in its natural condition."

IS OUTLOOK

(By United Press)
St. Cloud, March 14.—The proposed national third party will be endorsed by the farmer-labor state convention today.

Whether a presidential candidate will be endorsed was a question not yet settled when the delegates met at 10 a. m.

Any presidential endorsement, however, is likely to go to U. S. Senator Robert M. LaFollette of Wisconsin.

Unless the convention is in the mood to vote on endorsements for state officials, there will be a fight on the presidential endorsement.

This is the battle plan of friends of Charles A. Lindberg of Little Falls, Minnesota, seeking the endorsement for governor. Tom Davis, Minneapolis, also a farmer-labor candidate for governor, does not want the convention to make an endorsement. Lindberg adherents want to settle the fight here and now.

The big battle of the convention is over endorsement of the new farmer-labor federation launched yesterday in Minneapolis, by the nonpartisan and the working people's nonpartisan political league.

Within these organizations are the radicals who want to steal the farmer-labor party from Fred A. Pike, state chairman of the present state convention. The farmer-labor federation crowd, headed by William Mahoney, St. Paul, want to abolish the state committee and organize the party which has legal standing in Minnesota on the same basis as the nonpartisan league has been functioning.

The nonpartisan league federation sent a big delegation to the convention, and a fight at the outset over seating of delegates was in prospect.

WILD DEMONSTRATION FOR SEN. LAFOLLETTE

St. Cloud, Minn., March 14.—The name of U. S. Senator Robert M. LaFollette, of Wisconsin, was received with a wild demonstration at the Minnesota farmer-labor convention as a third party presidential possibility today.

Cheering and stamping shook the armory when Fred A. Pike, chairman, eulogized the Wisconsin senator and assured the convention that LaFollette was in a receptive mood.

The spontaneous harmony over LaFollette, however, gave way immediately to a battle over the temporary chairmanship.

David H. Evans, of Tracy, was elected unanimously after a battle of more than an hour which at times became heated. Five others nominated by popular vote, withdrew before Evans was elected.

Chairman Pike got into a lot of trouble when he attempted to name John A. Baldis a temporary chairman. Several delegates questioned his right to make the nomination from the chair.

Pike read Robert's rules of order, but the delegates were suspicious. They voted for a call for nominations from the floor and the six were nominated.

Al G. Scott, Minneapolis socialist, withdrew in favor of Thomas Bolner. Bolner withdrew in favor of David H. Evans, of Tracy, and Scott reconsidered his withdrawal.

John Baldis, named by Chairman Pike, also withdrew in favor of Evans. William Mahoney, labor leader of St. Paul, also withdrew.

In a vote Evans won two to one over Scott. Scott then moved to make it unanimous for Evans. This

FINDINGS OF THE REFEREE UPHELD

HIGH COURT ASSERTS BABY GUY
STILLMAN IS SON OF
BANKER

(By United Press)
New York, March 14.—The appellate division of the supreme court in Brooklyn today unanimously upheld the findings of Referee Gleason in the Stillman divorce case.

Gleason's findings were in favor of Mrs. Ann U. Stillman in her defense of the suit for divorce brought against her by James A. Stillman, former president of the National City bank.

"The findings of the court and the referee," the court's memorandum said, "that the plaintiff (Stillman) was guilty of adultery and not entitled to a judgment of divorce are amply supported by the evidence; in fact, it is undisputed and hence these findings are affirmed."

"So far as the question of legitimacy of the child (Baby Guy Stillman, whom the banker charged was the son of Fred Beauvais, Canadian 'Indian guide') is concerned, this court also affirms the findings of the court and referee are conclusive, being that the evidence fails to establish his illegitimacy."

John F. Brennan, attorney for Mrs. Stillman, said at his office in Yonkers he would make no move until he had received a copy of the decision.

Lawyers said the decision today means that in the eyes of the court Baby Guy Stillman is established as the lawful son of Stillman.

St. Paul, March 14.—The Ramsey county grand jury met again today after a short layoff. Many new criminal cases will be taken up.

TRACK MARK HAS STOOD 24 YEARS

Back in 1900, Maxey Long ran the 140 yard straightaway in 47 seconds flat. That was nearly a quarter of a century ago, but even so, the record still stands. Down through the years, America has seen many great quarter-milers, but here is one mark which thus far has withstood all assaults. Men like Taylor, Reidpath, Half, Meredith and countless others as good, have been unable to lower the record hung up by Long in 1900. It is one of the oldest existing marks on the athletic books.

was accomplished by acclamation. Evans, who was the first farmer-labor man for governor in Minnesota, received a great ovation when he took up the gavel.

After a temporary secretary had been elected, a motion was passed to make the credentials committee representative of the ten congressional districts of the state, each delegation electing its own man of the committee.

The convention recessed at noon for one hour.

U. S. TO TAKE OVER ISLE ROYALE, HEART OF LAKE SUPERIOR

(By United Press)

Washington, March 14.—If Isle Royale, a virgin island in the heart of Lake Superior, becomes a national recreation area, one of the dreams of Secretary of the Interior Work will be realized.

Steps have already been taken by the secretary to procure the island for national park purposes. A portion of the land owned by the state of Michigan has been donated to the federal government and several private owners have informed the secretary of their disposition to follow the state's action. As soon as the entire acreage has been transferred by gift to the government, Secretary Work will recommend to the president that it be converted into a national monument.

The island has an area of 132,000 acres. It is 45 miles long and 9 miles wide. It lies almost in the center of the lake and is 35 miles from Duluth, Minn., and 18 miles from Port Arthur.

Once the transfer to the government is effected it is the plan to preserve the features of the island. Here among the stately trees the axe of the woodcutter has never been heard. Over the mossy banks and leaf-covered stretches roam herds of moose, wood and caribou and other animals which have never heard the report of the hunter's gun. In its 21 cool inland lakes and swift-flowing streams live many tribes who have never been emptied by the fisherman's bait. In the tree-tops are breeding places of innumerable wild fowl, migratory, song and insectivorous birds and gulls and terns.

Evidence of pre-historic mining and inhabitants have been uncovered in sections of the island. It is the only place known to man where chert, corals (green stones) and thompsonites have been found. For many reasons, the island is of unusual scientific interest, and offers rare opportunities for research and study.

"This island, it seems to me," said Secretary Work, "fully measures up to national monument standards, and I have no doubt that it is qualified for a conspicuous place in the National Park system. If practically all of the holdings can be secured for the United States, I will be pleased to exercise the power vested in me by law to accept the gift and recommend to the president that he establish a national monument to preserve the island in its natural condition."

TO RE-ORGANIZE N. W. HOSPITAL

Committee of Citizens Aims to Have Same Sponsored by Protestant Churches

TO CAMPAIGN FOR FUNDS

To be Used in Taking Over Institution and Putting on Sound Financial Basis

A committee of citizens met recently for the purpose of taking steps to re-organize the Northwestern hospital, and from this committee a new association has been formed, sponsored by the Protestant churches of Brainerd and vicinity.

The citizens committee met and elected a Ways and Means committee, in whose hands has been placed the task of deciding upon the methods that will be used to take over the hospital.

It is now planned to put on a campaign for funds early in May, the funds received to be used in taking over the institution and placing it upon a sound financial basis.

Citizens of the city have interested themselves in this matter, because it is felt that the hospital fills an urgent need in this territory, and that it has a definite work to perform. It will be conducted as purely a non-sectarian institution, and a community hospital, and it is hoped that people locally will give the campaign their hearty support.

BRAINERD CHORAL SOCIETY NOTES

To all members of the Choral society a word is being spoken, calling attention to the regular weekly rehearsal to be held tonight. To all others who have reasonably good voices and can read music fairly well an invitation is extended to meet with the chorus this evening.

The work henceforth will be in preparation for the May program, which will be given over to the Choral society in its entirety with but few exceptions.

CHARLES JONES IN "BIG DAN"
WILLIAM FOX PRODUCTION

It seems that we can run away from nothing on this round earth of ours, without coming back to where we started. The earth is obviously round in its moral composition as well as in its physical. In "Big Dan," the Charles Jones production made by William Fox and being presented at the Lyceum Theatre tonight and Saturday, a wife deserts her husband for a worthless, nugatory rone.

She did this while the husband was fighting in France. When he returns to his tenanted home he gives up his profession of boxing. The country training camp that was an inheritance from his famous pugilist father, he converts into an outdoor school for boys.

Later, his wife returns, broken in body and spirit, an abject penitent for her has died and she is sent to a Western sanitarium. Later still, while working on his new profession, philanthropy, he meets and conceives a deep love for the beautiful daughter of an old man he has attempted to restore to health.

He is unable to declare his love by reason of his unfortunate marriage. In the meantime another takes advantage of his silence to demonstrate his own affection. The rival is a prize-fighter being trained by Big Dan for an important bout.

Considered from every angle the story and its development, the cast and its performance want nothing to be perfect.

Colleen Moore and Ben Lyon in "Flaming Youth"

Girls Go Bathing a la Silhouette on a Dare

A bathing party—a la silhouette. Such a party is one of the highlights of "Flaming Youth," a first National screen version of Warner Pabian's sensational novel of the same title, which comes to the New Park Saturday and Sunday.

"Flaming Youth," a daringly dramatic story of contemporary society life, tells the story of the lives and loves of a modern mother and her three ultra-modern daughters, members of a household famous for its exotic merrymaking.

At the biggest party of the year interest appears to wane. "Let's go bathing," someone suggested. "Where are the bathing suits?" asks another.

"What difference," one answers. So they all run for the private pool, where, divesting themselves of divers garments, they jump in.

The Edelweiss.

The Edelweiss is an Alpine perennial woolly plant of the Composite family, found in Switzerland, the Tirol, Carinthia, Alpine Austria, and Siberia. It bears heads of flowers surrounded by woolly bracts and sage-green leaves. It is famous, not for its beauty, but for its scarcity and the difficulty of obtaining it in its elevated haunts. It is so rare in Switzerland that several canons protect it by law. It is readily cultivated in gardens in America and Europe. In Swiss poetry and legend it plays a prominent part.

Soap and Water.

Surrounded on all sides by a multitude of unseen and deadly disease germs nature has endowed mankind with a very simple and effective means of protection which is cleanliness—the chief requirement for which is the generous and frequent use of soap and water.

Migratory Habit Still Exists With Americans

A young man in Europe looks forward as a rule to spending his life in the city of his birth and, very likely, in the profession or business pursued by his father. But in the United States, for 200 years, a large part of each generation has moved West and created new homes for itself. Nothing could more effectively foster individualism of the type advocated (and typified) by Herbert Hoover.

This migratory habit persists to the present day even when it has lost much of its economic justification. Americans are forever on the move; the man who lives in the house where he was born is almost a curiosity.

The sense of transience thus created leads also to a certain looseness of community organization, and specifically to a toleration of corrupt practice in business and politics. The mayor of your town may be a hoodlum; but after all, since you are thinking seriously of moving to Austin, Tex., next spring, what does it matter?

The departure from the old Americanism which was created so largely by the existence of the frontier, has naturally gone further in the Eastern states than in the West, which is, even today, much closer to pioneer conditions. As regards the career of the young man, for example, New England today resembles France more nearly than the Far West.

Beyond the Mississippi, eyebrows are still raised when young George elects to settle down in old George's business instead of striking out for himself. In most Western communities any healthy man who elects to live on his income without working at something will find himself most unhappily isolated—so much so, indeed, that almost invariably he is forced to flee to New York or Paris. When he does this he finds himself for the first time placed in a society which demands from him a definite degree of sophistication.—New Republic.

HAIRING OUR MERCHANT MARINE

READING English papers' editorials recently one came to the conclusion that the American merchant marine was about on its last legs, to use an expressive but mixed metaphor. It is with some interest that one scans a recent pronouncement of Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., president of the Republican Publicity association, who gives this resume of new policies to help our merchant marine.

It is to be hoped that the people of the country generally will earnestly and persistently support their representatives at Washington to the end of encouraging our merchant marine. It is to be regretted that too frequently neither patriotism nor permanent self-interest prompts Americans to adopt the aggressive tactics so common among the people of our leading merchant marine rivals.

The two new policies put into effect were initiated by the United States Shipping Board and the Post Office Department, respectively. Under the Merchant Marine Act of 1920, railroads are prohibited from making reduced rates on through shipments of exports or imports unless the vessels upon which the goods are to be carried to foreign ports or upon which they have been brought into the United States from foreign ports, are American. The Shipping Board was authorized, however, to suspend operation of that provision and it has been under suspension until the present time because the board felt that American tonnage was not adequate to serve the trade of the country. Now, however, feeling that the number and tonnage of American ships are adequate and the routes such as will meet the needs of our trade, the board has discontinued the suspension of this provision and henceforth railroads will be prohibited from making through reduced rates for other than American ships. This should have a very desirable effect.

The action taken by the Post Office Department has in view the transportation of as large a proportion as possible of outgoing and incoming mail in American ships. To a large extent the incoming mail can be controlled by our Post Office Department. American mails are to be sent on American ships, wherever possible. A large proportion of incoming mail will also be sent on American ships.

Not long ago public attention was called to the fact that when British merchants sell goods they sell them with insurance and freight included in the contract, thus giving the British merchant control over the insurance premium and the determination of the transportation line to handle the goods. The British merchant has taken care to see that the goods are insured in British companies and that they are transported on British ships. On the other hand, when the British merchant buys abroad he buys f.o.b., which again gives him control of the transportation and he favors the British line in preference to the ships of any other nation. Unfortunately, Americans have not been so aggressive in their effort to build up our ocean transportation service. On the contrary, we recently had the deplorable example of one of the most important professional organizations in the country making a contract many months in advance for the use of a British ship to transport their American members to a world conference to be held in London.

It is high time that every reasonable appeal to patriotism and every reasonable method of compulsion be utilized to turn trade to American ships and thus build up and permanently maintain an adequate merchant marine.

THE AUTO SHOW

DULUTH, like Brainerd, is staging an auto show and is just as enthusiastic as this town over the coming exposition. Show dates do not conflict. Duluth has made it an annual affair, this being their tenth show. Experience has proven the value of the auto show.

In Brainerd all details are being attended to with the greatest fidelity. Committees are busy preparing for the show, to be given March 20, 21, and 22 in the 10,000 Lakes garage building, southwest corner of Front and Fifth streets.

Eleven dealers will exhibit their 1924 models. Here is just an idea of some of the cars represented at the show, arranged alphabetically:

Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Dodge, Durant, Ford, Gardner, Hudson, Hupmobile, Lincoln, Nash, Oakland, Oldsmobile, Overland, Star, Studebaker, Willys-Knight.

The show will be extensively advertised, so that every community, town and city in this section will be made aware of the event. Large crowds are expected and the city will take on a holiday appearance for the week end. Roads are in fine shape at present. There will be a heavy pilgrimage of automobiles for Brainerd, and trains and buses will also carry their quotas.

Every effort will be made to entertain the visitors at the auto show. There will be orchestral music, singing by a noted soloist, the radio will also assist and coupled with all this will be the luxurious display of cars all nicely arranged in their various booths and sections. There will also be radio, electrical equipment, batteries, household appliances, etc., on display. Admission is absolutely free. All Central Minnesota and every other community of the state is invited.

Cars shown will range in price from several thousand dollars down to a few hundred, making a car available to all classes of people.

FLAPPER BANDITRY

FLAPPER banditry can be carried to extremes. We read of the case of the St. Paul flapper, young in years, mother of two children, who had a male friend stay home and tend to her children while she "held up" oil filling station.

It reads like fiction, but there is a note of pity underlying when one reads her statement that it was want that drove her to crime, that her work as usher and other employment obtained was insufficient to sustain the little brood.

ST. PAUL BANDIT GANGS

THREE St. Paul bandit gangs have been broken up by the police of that city and pictures published in the St. Paul Daily News reveal the bandits as young men in the early twenties. Shooting to kill seems to have had the effect of instilling respect for the law in the balance left.

Device to Facilitate Instruction in Writing

Electrograph is the name of an instrument invented in Spain to facilitate instruction in writing in schools. The apparatus is designed to educate the hand to move in accordance with the will. First of all, metallic sheets are cut in such manner as to afford graphic designs most difficult for the untrained muscles—angles, loops, straight lines, crooked lines, vertical and horizontal lines, etc. The sheets, when used by the child, must be so arranged that they may easily be brought together or separated, as desired; and this is necessary also in order to make the lesson difficult or easy, as desired by the instructor. These sheets, consequently, are fastened down with screws so peculiarly made that a certain pressure may cause them to give a bit to one side or the other. Under the desk is an electric bell connected with the sheets above by a copper wire. Below these, and entirely isolated, is another system of sheets. The child is brought before the instrument and told to place his paper between the free spaces of the sheets, mark his outline and then punch a key. This contact will open the electric current and make the bell ring. If the pressure he exerts does not make the metallic outline precisely cover the one on his penciled paper, the bell below rings, giving immediate notice of his error. The child enjoys the "game," and is stimulated to make his loop or curve exactly match that of the metallic sheet.

Sneeze Greeted in Many Ways in Various Places

"A vos souhaits!" (God bless you!) Now is the season when you hear the expression very frequently. With these words we apostrophize one who sneezes.

Among the Indian tribes of North America, we understand, a polite question is elicited by the sneeze of one's companion: "Who calls me?" When an Eskimo sneezes he says to himself: "Come back to me!" for popular belief has it that the sneeze indicates an escape or flight of the soul.

In the British East Indies it is also believed that part of the soul flies forth at each sneeze; and when the natives hear a friend sneeze, they say: "God protect you!" to which the sneezer's response should be: "And you likewise!" The Siamese believe that a person sneezes because God, turning the pages of the Doomsday Book, has paused at his name.

In Portugal, when anyone sneezes, you raise your hat. The Irish and the Russians, like the Hindus, exclaim: "God protect you!" The Italians say: "Felicità!"

As for the English, they don't say anything at all, but they immediately take precautions against a cold in the head, of which the sneeze is supposed to be a warning.—Le Petit Parisien.

A River of Romance

What a stream of romance and story the Missouri river has been! This wonderful river with its broad stretches of lake and bluff, its bird-haunted islands and bayous, its changing moods, its varying climates and vegetation, its Indian and white populations, its song and story, has built itself into our national structure, and the end is not yet.

The story of the Mississippi has not yet been written. It is liquid romance. It has been flowing down this central valley as long as water has flowed anywhere on this continent. The geologist speaks of it as "hoary with antiquity." And it will flow here when the last man has vanished from the scene of desolation, and so long as water can flow on a parched and desolate globe.—Indianapolis Journal.

Hunting Cheeta

For short distances the cheeta is supposed to be the swiftest quadruped. However, it is not possible to ascribe the honor definitely to any particular animal. The cheeta, which is found in Asia and Africa, is a large tropical cat, slender of body and limb. It is from three to four feet long and of a pale, tawny color, marked with numerous dark spots on its sides and back and almost white beneath. It resembles the leopard, and is often called the hunting leopard. The animal resembles the dog in docility. Its fur is not sleek like that of typical cats. It has a long tail, which is somewhat bushy at the end.

A Suggestion

"Well, law suzz!" ejaculated Mrs. Johnson in the midst of her reading. "This is shore funny: A professor, up there in the East some's, is going to try to larn young apes to talk." "Hum!" returned Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "If it don't cost too much we might get him down yur to try his scheme on our baby. The little feller don't do much now but cuss."

No Consolation

The vicar, after a heavy defeat, was returning disconsolate from the links. "Cheer up," said his opponent, "you'll win at the finish. Why, you'll be burying me one day, I expect." "But even then," said the vicar, "it will be your hole!"

Don't Shed Tusks

Among the Indian or Asiatic elephants only the male has the tusks, but they are found on both the male and female of the African species. Sometimes these tusks weigh from 150 to 200 pounds.

The tusks of the elephants are merely projections of the incisors of the upper jaw and are never shed, although they are sometimes broken off. In other words, the tusks are part of the elephant's teeth. However, the milk teeth, which precede the tusks, come out at an early age.

The tusks of the elephant supply the ivory which is so highly esteemed the world over for ornamental purposes.—Detroit News.

AIDING OUR MERCHANT MARINE

READING English papers' editorials recently one came to the conclusion that the American merchant marine was about on its last legs, to use an expressive but mixed metaphor. It is with some interest that one scans a recent pronouncement of Hon. Jonathan Bourne, Jr., president of the Republican Publicity association, who gives this resume of new policies to help our merchant marine.

It is to be hoped that the people of the country generally will earnestly and persistently support their representatives at Washington to the end of encouraging our merchant marine. It is to be regretted that too frequently neither patriotism nor permanent self-interest prompts Americans to adopt the aggressive tactics so common among the people of our leading merchant marine rivals.

The two new policies put into effect were initiated by the United States Shipping Board and the Post Office Department, respectively. Under the Merchant Marine Act of 1920, railroads are prohibited from making reduced rates on through shipments of exports or imports unless the vessels upon which the goods are to be carried to foreign ports or upon which they have been brought into the United States from foreign ports, are American. The Shipping Board was authorized, however, to suspend operation of that provision and it has been under suspension until the present time because the board felt that American tonnage was not adequate to serve the trade of the country. Now, however, feeling that the number and tonnage of American ships are adequate and the routes such as will meet the needs of our trade, the board has discontinued the suspension of this provision and henceforth railroads will be prohibited from making through reduced rates for other than American ships. This should have a very desirable effect.

The action taken by the Post Office Department has in view the transportation of as large a proportion as possible of outgoing and incoming mail in American ships. To a large extent the incoming mail can be controlled by our Post Office Department. American mails are to be sent on American ships, wherever possible. A large proportion of incoming mail will also be sent on American ships.

Not long ago public attention was called to the fact that when British merchants sell goods they sell them with insurance and freight included in the contract, thus giving the British merchant control over the insurance premium and the determination of the transportation line to handle the goods. The British merchant has taken care to see that the goods are insured in British companies and that they are transported on British ships. On the other hand, when the British merchant buys abroad he buys f.o.b., which again gives him control of the transportation and he favors the British line in preference to the ships of any other nation. Unfortunately, Americans have not been so aggressive in their effort to build up our ocean transportation service. On the contrary, we recently had the deplorable example of one of the most important professional organizations in the country making a contract many months in advance for the use of a British ship to transport their American members to a world conference to be held in London.

It is high time that every reasonable appeal to patriotism and every reasonable method of compulsion be utilized to turn trade to American ships and thus build up and permanently maintain an adequate merchant marine.

THE AUTO SHOW

DULUTH, like Brainerd, is staging an auto show and is just as enthusiastic as this town over the coming exposition. Show dates do not conflict. Duluth has made it an annual affair, this being their tenth show. Experience has proven the value of the auto show.

In Brainerd all details are being attended to with the greatest fidelity. Committees are busy preparing for the show, to be given March 20, 21, and 22 in the 10,000 Lakes garage building, southwest corner of Front and Fifth streets.

Eleven dealers will exhibit their 1924 models. Here is just an idea of some of the cars represented at the show, arranged alphabetically:

Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Dodge, Durant, Ford, Gardner, Hudson, Hupmobile, Lincoln, Nash, Oakland, Oldsmobile, Overland, Star, Studebaker, Willys-Knight.

The show will be extensively advertised, so that every community, town and city in this section will be made aware of the event. Large crowds are expected and the city will take on a holiday appearance for the week end. Roads are in fine shape at present. There will be a heavy pilgrimage of automobiles for Brainerd, and trains and buses will also carry their quotas.

Every effort will be made to entertain the visitors at the auto show. There will be orchestral music, singing by a noted soloist, the radio will also assist and coupled with all this will be the luxuriant display of cars all nicely arranged in their various booths and sections. There will also be radio, electrical equipment, batteries, household appliances, etc., on display. Admission is absolutely free. All Central Minnesota and every other community of the state is invited.

Cars shown will range in price from several thousand dollars down to a few hundred, making a car available to all classes of people.

FLAPPER BANDITRY

FLAPPER banditry can be carried to extremes. We read of the case of the St. Paul flapper, young in years, mother of two children, who had a male friend stay home and tend to her children while she "held up" oil filling station.

It reads like fiction, but there is a note of pity underlying when one reads her statement that it was want that drove her to crime, that her work as usher and other employment obtained was insufficient to sustain the little brood.

ST. PAUL BANDIT GANGS

THREE St. Paul bandit gangs have been broken up by the police of that city and pictures published in the St. Paul Daily News reveal the bandits as young men in the early twenties. Shooting to kill seems to have had the effect of instilling respect for the law in the balance left.

Gold in Mission Altar Proves Old Mines Existed

Perhaps the most concrete evidence today, pointing to the reality of the legends of early civilization in the Southwest is the altar of San Xavier mission, conducted at the present time by Catholic sisters for the relief of the sick and needy among the Indians. For several hundred years the mission was a cathedral and it is situated a few miles outside of the city of Tucson, Ariz. The altar is inlaid with virgin gold, and pure gold was beaten into the masonry and decorations of the chancel when it was constructed early in the Seventeenth century.

The records of the mission, which have been carefully kept for generations, show that the gold was brought by Indians from the Canada del Oro, where it was mined under the direction of Spanish priests. In fact, the old trail by which the precious metal was transported on mules' backs still exists and leads directly from the cathedral into Canada del Oro and then loses itself in desert wastes.

The Apaches attacked the mission about one hundred years ago and drove away the priests. For several years the Indian tribes used the building as a stable, but they did not touch the altar of gold. It is believed that they had no interest in gold intrinsically, for their medicine men are thought to have had, even at that late date, complete information about rich deposits of desert gold.—New York Tribune.

Obtain Paint Remover by Processing Corncocks

Furfural is the aldehyde of furfuran and is obtained from the processing of corncocks. The corncocks and water are placed in an autoclave and steam at about 130 pounds pressure is admitted and the mixture is permitted to digest for about two hours, after which the furfural is blown off by steam, condensed and collected. The furfural is then separated from the water by distillation. The yield is about 120 pounds of furfural from one ton of corncocks, or approximately 6 per cent.

Furfural has an agreeable odor and boils at a temperature above 100 degrees C. Its boiling point is the same as that of turpentine. This makes furfural a much less dangerous substance than some of the solvents that are used in paint and varnish removers. It also obviates the necessity of weighting the solvent with wax, as it evaporates slowly enough to do its work thoroughly. Furthermore, it does not injure the surface underneath. When smeared over a surface it evaporates after a while, but it shows a tendency to form drops. This disadvantage may be removed by the addition of 20 per cent of solvent naphtha. By the addition of wood oil the viscosity of the furfural is increased.—Scientific American.

Whale Fishing

In early days the wooden sailing ships engaged in the whaling industry in southern seas pursued only right whales and sperm whales, or cachalots. The so-called "finners," such as the blue whale, the largest animal in the world; the finner whale, the small fish whale, and the humpback, were all too active and sank too quickly when killed. But their turn has now come, for the whale gun is a finely-fashioned cannon, the harpoon carries a shell, and the body of the whale is kept afloat by inflating it with air through pipes from the engine room of the whaler. The rendering is now done in a factory on shore, or in a special large vessel moored in the harbor. Besides the whalebone, which no longer pays well or at all, and the oil, which is graded into qualities as it comes from the blubber, the fat of the tongue and kidneys, the flesh and bones and the refuse, there remain the dried flesh and bones, which are now also put to commercial use. The fresh flesh is used to make whale meat meal.

Oil Spring of 1629

The first reference to the discovery of petroleum in America is contained in a letter written in 1629 by Joseph de la Roche d'Allion, a French missionary to the Indians.

He had crossed the Niagara river and made his way southward through western New York into northern Pennsylvania, where he found a spring from which oil flowed.

This oil was highly esteemed by the Indians for medicinal uses, says the Detroit News. The letter of the priest was published in 1632 in Sagard's "Histoire de Canada."

A Demonstration

Pat, a new hired hand in a machine shop, after having been repeatedly warned to keep away from the dangerous machinery, came in contact with a buzz saw. The foreman happening along, saw Pat holding up the bleeding stump of a finger, cried:

"Why, Pat, how did that happen?" "Ah, sure, sir," said Pat, "I jist put me finger near that saw like this—Ah, he jabbers, there goes another one."—Boys' Magazine.

A Condition

The stern parent was interviewing his daughter's suitor who was asking her hand in matrimony.

"She tells me she loves you," returned the girl's father, "but that is not all. Do you think you can afford to pay for all the little luxuries that she is accustomed to?"

"Why—er—yes—that is, if she'll do without the necessities, I can," replied the young man reflectively.

Too Much Argument

Two drovers were sitting in the inn of an English village. They had been sitting there for nearly an hour, and so far neither had spoken. At last one of them opened his mouth.

"Didst see old brown cow on the moor?" he asked.

Another half hour elapsed. Then the second drover spoke, "I warn't brown cow," he said. "Twas brown bull."

Silence then for another half hour. The first man rose and made for the door.

"Going?" queried the other.

"Aye," came the reply. "Far too much argument here for me."

Nightmare

A pair of London lovers were strolling along late one evening when the girl said to her companion:

"Bill, I dreamt about you last night."

For one short moment Bill tasted heaven. "G'wan," he breathed; "yer never!"

"Yus," she continued, "I did straight. Yer know, fried fish an' mince pies always gives me the nightmare!"

Missed it

"Why do you look so sorrowful, Murphy?"

"I just heard a man call another a liar, and the man that was called a liar said the other man would have to apologize, or there would be a fight."

"And why should that make you so sad?"

"The other man apologized."

An Argument.

When she says, "Well, I know it is," and he says, "Well, I know it ain't," they call that an "argument."

Mrs. P. W. writes of her colored laundry woman saying to her: "My sister and me, ma'am, we ain't no more alike dan if we was't us. She's just as different as I be, only, o' course, de othah way."—Boston Transcript.

A Reasonable Supposition.

"Monkeys don't think," declares one scientist. "They only feel emotions and make sounds." Accepting this proposition as a basis for reasoning, isn't it possible that the missing link may be found in the average after-dinner speaker?

Banker's Friends Elated

"Twelve years ago I became afflicted with stomach trouble which steadily became worse. I frequently became prostrated with colic attacks and bloating. My doctors wanted to operate for gall stones. I wished to avoid an operation and on advice of a friend tried May's Wonderful Remedy with excellent results as since taking it about two years ago my trouble has entirely disappeared." It removes the enteral mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. Gold in Mission Altar Proves Old Mines Existed

Perhaps the most concrete evidence today, pointing to the reality of the legends of early civilization in the Southwest is the altar of San Xavier mission, conducted at the present time by Catholic sisters for the relief of the sick and needy among the Indians. For several hundred years the mission was a cathedral and it is situated a few miles outside of the city of Tucson, Ariz. The altar is inlaid with virgin gold, and pure gold was beaten into the masonry and decorations of the chancel when it was constructed early in the Seventeenth century.

The records of the mission, which have been carefully kept for generations, show that the gold was brought by Indians from the Canada del Oro, where it was mined under the direction of Spanish priests. In fact, the old trail by which the precious metal was transported on mules' backs still exists and leads directly from the cathedral into Canada del Oro and then loses itself in desert wastes. The Apaches attacked the mission about one hundred years ago and drove away the priests. For several years the Indian tribes used the building as a stable, but they did not touch the altar of gold. It is believed that they had no interest in gold intrinsically, for their medicine men are thought to have had, even at that late date, complete information about rich deposits of desert gold.—New York Tribune.

Obtain Paint Remover by Processing Corncocks

Furfural is the aldehyde of furfuran and is obtained from the processing of corncocks. The corncocks and water are placed in an autoclave and steam at about 130 pounds pressure is admitted and the mixture is permitted to digest for about two hours, after which the furfural is blown off by steam, condensed and collected. The furfural is then separated from the water by distillation. The yield is about 120 pounds of furfural from one ton of corncocks, or approximately 6 per cent.

Furfural has an agreeable odor and boils at a temperature above 100 degrees C. Its boiling point is the same as that of turpentine. This makes furfural a much less dangerous substance than some of the solvents that are used in paint and varnish removers. It also obviates the necessity of weighting the solvent with wax, as it evaporates so slowly enough to do its work thoroughly. Furthermore, it does not injure the surface underneath. When smeared over a surface it evaporates after a while, but it shows a tendency to form drops. This disadvantage may be removed by the addition of 20 per cent of solvent naphtha. By the addition of wood oil the viscosity of the furfural is increased.—Scientific American.

Whale Fishing

In early days the wooden sailing ships engaged in the whaling industry in southern seas pursued only right whales and sperm whales, or cachalots. The so-called "finners," such as the blue whale, the largest animal in the world; the finner whale, the small fish whale, and the humpback, were all too active and sank too quickly when killed. But their turn has now come, for the whale gun is a finely-fashioned cannon, the harpoon carries a shell, and the body of the whale is kept afloat by inflating it with air through pipes from the engine room of the whaler. The rendering is now done in a factory on shore, or in a special large vessel moored in the harbor. Besides the whalebone, which no longer pays well or at all, and the oil, which is graded into qualities as it comes from the blubber, the fat of the tongue and kidneys, the flesh and bones and the refuse, there remain the dried flesh and bones, which are now also put to commercial use. The fresh flesh is used to make whale meat meal.

Oil Spring of 1629

The first reference to the discovery of petroleum in America is contained in a letter written in 1629 by Joseph de la Roche d'Allion, a French missionary to the Indians. He had crossed the Niagara river and made his way southward through western New York into northern Pennsylvania, where he found a spring from which oil flowed. This oil was highly esteemed by the Indians for medicinal uses, says the Detroit News. The letter of the priest was published in 1632 in Sagard's "Histoire de Canada."

A Demonstration

Pat, a new hired hand in a machine shop, after having been repeatedly warned to keep away from the dangerous machinery, came in contact with a buzz saw. The foreman happening along, saw Pat holding up the bleeding stump of a finger, cried: "Why, Pat, how did that happen?" "Ah, sure, sir," said Pat, "I just put me finger near that saw like this—Ah, he jabbers, there goes another one."—Boys' Magazine.

A Condition

The stern parent was interviewing his daughter's suitor who was asking her hand in matrimony. "She tells me she loves you," returned the girl's father, "but that is not all. Do you think you can afford to pay for all the little luxuries that she is accustomed to?" "Why—er—yes—that is, if she'll do without the necessities, I can," replied the young man reflectively.

Too Much Argument

Two drovers were sitting in the inn of an English village. They had been sitting there for nearly an hour, and so far neither had spoken. At last one of them opened his mouth.

"Didst see old brown cow on the moor?" he asked.

Another half hour elapsed. Then the second drover spoke. "It warn't brown cow," he said. "Twas brown bull."

Silence then for another half hour. The first man rose and made for the door.

"Going?" queried the other. "Aye," came the reply. "Far too much argument here for me."

Nightmare

A pair of London lovers were strolling along late one evening when the girl said to her companion:

"Bill, I dreamt about you last night."

For one short moment Bill tasted heaven. "G'wan," he breathed; "yer never!"

"Yus," she continued, "I did straight. Yer know, tried fish an' mince pies always gives me the nightmare!"

Missed It

"Why do you look so sorrowful, Murphy?"

"I just heard a man call another a liar, and the man that was called a liar said the other man would have to apologize, or there would be a fight."

"And why should that make you so sad?"

"The other man apologized."

Orion Stars Are Hot

Prof. E. E. Slosson says that the Orion stars are the most massive and hottest of all the stars. Their surface temperatures are believed to be at least as high as 20,000 degrees, as compared with the surface temperature of 11,000 degrees for our own sun.

CREAM WILL CLEAR A STUFFED-UP HEAD

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed because of nasty catarrh or a cold, apply a little pure, antiseptic cream into your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage, soothing and healing swollen, inflamed membranes and you get instant relief.

Try this. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Your clogged nostrils open right up; your head is clear; no more yawning or snuffling. Count fifty. All the stuffiness, dryness, struggling for breath is gone. You feel fine.—Advt.

Takes pills for years—finds first permanent relief in Kellogg's Bran

Have you found permanent relief from that terrible disease—constipation? The woman whose letter follows discovered—as thousands have discovered—that Kellogg's Bran succeeds when all else fails. This is because Kellogg's Bran is ALL bran. Nothing but ALL bran can be so effective. This is what she wrote:

"Gentlemen:

I am so wonderfully happy over my discovery. I feel I must tell the world about it. For years I have been ill continually from constipation, always resorting to pills or the like, never having any permanent relief until I heard of your Krumbled Bran.

of four years on your Bran, and already I have noticed a change in her. I thank you."

Name and address furnished on request. Write the Kellogg Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

If eaten regularly, Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is guaranteed to relieve permanently the most chronic cases of constipation. Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. Money returned if not effective.

Notice the wonderful nut-like flavor. This flavor is delicious—so different from ordinary, unpalatable bran.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, made in Battle Creek, is served by America's leading hotels and clubs. Demand Kellogg's Bran. It will bring back your health. Start eating it today. Sold by all grocers.

A treat for shampooing, a delight for bathing, wonderful for the complexion.

You don't need Turkey to enjoy Cranberries

Great with Roast Pork!

Delicious cranberry sauce—made in ten minutes makes the finest relish with roast pork—and promotes digestion!

Whenserved with any kind of meat, cranberry sauce gives zest to the whole meal and helps balance the diet. Here's the proper way to make cranberry sauce—

Ten-Minute Cranberry Sauce

One quart cranberries, two cups boiling water, 1 1/2 to 2 cups sugar. Boil sugar and water together for five minutes; skim; add the cranberries and boil without stirring (five minutes is usually sufficient) until all the skins are broken. Remove from the fire when the popping stops.

And when you have the cranberry sauce, you can easily and quickly make many delicious desserts, such as cranberry pie, pudding, short-cake tarts, etc.

To be sure of getting the choicest cultivated varieties, ask for Eatmor Cranberries. The red and blue trade-mark label is on all barrels and boxes.

And always cook cranberries in porcelain-lined or aluminum vessels.

EMPIRE SPENDING 80 MILLION FOR BIGGEST SHOW

KING GEORGE TO OPEN SAME ABOUT THE MIDDLE OF APRIL

BIRDSEYE VIEW OF BRITISH EM-PIRE TO BE GIVEN AT THE SHOW

By P. M. SARR,
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
London, March 14.—The British Empire Exhibition, at Wembley Park (Northwest London), which King George will open about the middle of April, is described by the promoters as the greatest world show ever staged and, unlike most such claims, this is probably pretty near true. It is frankly a British Empire flag-waving affair, from which huge Empire commercial benefits are confidently anticipated. The fact that King George is patron, the Prince of Wales president, and the Government of Great Britain and all the big Dominions, colonies and dependencies are officially participating—and spending real money on the enterprise—should be sufficient guarantee that it is no mere speculative venture by private capitalists. The British Empire has in fact made it a patriotic matter, and whether it ever becomes a profit-maker, the constructors are optimistically building it to last several decades—it will certainly be the biggest show Britain has ever attempted.

Cost $80,000,000

More than $40,000,000 will have been spent on preparatory work before the exhibition actually opens its doors, and it is estimated that from first to last it will have cost eighty millions. The organizers, who are under government control, anticipate that at least 25,000,000 people will visit the exhibition between April and October, and preparations are being made to satisfy this huge concourse of visitors, so that they will want to come again in succeeding years.

The exhibition grounds cover 240 acres, according to the official figures. First to strike the eye is the huge athletic stadium, which was used last year for the final tie of the English football cup competition, and which can accommodate 127,000 people. Incidentally, last year some 200,000 football fans tried to gain admission and caused a serious riot, with something like a thousand casualties. The exterior view of the stadium is impressive. An immense turreted and terraced building, it stands on the highest part of the exhibition grounds.

A view of the exhibition from the stadium exterior terraces merely conveys an idea of numerous large buildings. Ample gardens and broad avenues—the latter all patriotically named by Britain's greatest poet, Rudyard Kipling—and separate the various buildings.

Australia and Canada have two huge buildings of their own, and the governments of these Dominions have each spent a quarter of a million pounds on construction work alone. The brown, mud-walled West African town, which houses the exhibits of the Gold Coast Colony, and the great white Arab sheik's castle-fort, which stands for British East Africa, hit the eye with equally pleasing effect.

Birdseye View of Empire

India has an imposing domed and turreted building, and a Chinese pagoda pattern marks Hong Kong and the Malay States—each distinct and nationally characteristic. The exhibition is in fact what it claims to be—"A birdseye view of the British Empire."

Many brilliant architectural experiments and modern developments are to be noted in the different buildings. For instance, the Palace of Engineering, the largest building in the exhibition, gives no real indication of its actual size from external inspection. It appears to be only a curiously low one-story affair. Entering the place, however, one is almost awed by the vastness of the floor-spacing. It is so much bigger than one would ever guess from outside. The main reason is that there are no divisions or separate built-up stalls for the exhibits. It is one gigantic hall, with overhead cranes and trolleys for moving huge pieces of machinery. The actual floor space is six times that of London's hitherto biggest exhibition building—Olympia.

The Palace of Industry is a somewhat similar building externally, but the interior, being divided into numerous sections devoted to separate trades, the effect is not nearly so great.

Ingenious lighting devices are employed on the Palace of Arts. To relieve the anxiety of people and corporations lending valuable oil-paintings and art objects, there will be no interior lighting, and the building will be closed at sundown. Yet by really clever variations of and innovations in window lighting, mainly from the roof, the light throughout the day will be excellent. In this building will be shown typical art of the Empire. And the private collections of the Empire have been tooth-combed to find worthy exhibits.

Such is the whole tenor of the exhibition. The last word in progress and modern science—all designed to advertise the British Empire.

Big Electric Sign.

Chicago's largest electric sign contains 3,152 lights and is used to advertise a large loop department store. The number of electric signs throughout the United States is estimated at 250,000. More than 15,000,000 electric bulbs are needed to illuminate them.

BRAINERD BOYS' BAND CONCERT

HUGO PFLOCK DIRECTOR

The "Musical Evening" Starts With a Musical Comedy Entitled "The Bee Silver Cornet Band"

The Brainerd Boys Band will give its first public concert on Friday evening, April 11th, at the New Park theatre announces the director, Hugo Pflock, who chooses to call the event a "musical evening" rather than a concert, for it will include much more than a program of band numbers.

The evening will open with a musical comedy entitled, "The Bee Silver Cornet Band," the roles to be taken by the members of the Boys Band. It will include a number of band selections with a number of comedy skits, and promises much in the line of entertainment in addition to displaying the progress the juvenile organization has made during its short existence.

The last half of the program will be devoted to instrumental and vocal solos, duets and trios, by members of the band, as well as ensemble playing, so that the public will be given a very good idea of its attainments and the possibilities that are in store for such an organization.

Mr. Pflock is seriously considering the matter of giving a matinee at four o'clock on the day of the concert, for school children, for it is thought that they will appreciate the program just as much as the grown-ups.

The proceeds from this affair are to be used for purchasing uniforms, equipment and other necessities for the Boys band, which are badly needed.

MRS. W. H. GEMMELL IN CHIEF ADDRESS

Says That Parenthood is as Surely a Profession as Other Callings So Named

STUDIED FROM ALL ANGLES

Every Parent Should be Interested in Betterment of the Community

The Whittier Parent-Teachers Association held its regular meeting on Tuesday night. Mrs. W. H. Gemmell spoke informally but very earnestly, saying that parenthood is as surely a profession as other callings so named.

It needs to be studied from all angles and Mrs. Gemmell gave names and authors of books that it would be well to read, have placed in the public library or purchase individually. Every parent, furthermore, should be interested in bettering the community, and to do this intelligently, should understand laws relating to children. These laws pertain to feeble-minded and unfortunate children and this in return is related to the whole subject of social hygiene.

The field of the social welfare worker, Miss Loretto Newman, has become so extensive that she cannot do much more than see that the laws pertaining to her line of activity are enforced. There is much need here for a "Big Sister" group and Mrs. Gemmell asked that if anyone would be willing to work with Miss Newman along this line, she would give her name to the Welfare board.

Mrs. Gemmell spoke of the branch of the work so ably covered by the county nurse, Miss Thora Ingebritson.

A point brought out regarding the work of the city nurse, Miss Eula Michael, was that most people in a community are in fairly good health and are able to pay a physician and a nurse if necessary. They also understand about common conditions that are a detriment to the health of children. But they do not give the children the regular and thorough examination along certain lines that is conducted by the school nurse. Her report assists many parents in checking the beginnings of serious trouble that was entirely unsuspected. Announcement will be made later regarding a tag day to contribute toward the city nurse's car.

Dr. C. G. Nordin, as chairman of a park skating rink committee, reported that the protracted warm weather of early winter and the severe cold of January both hindered the work on the rink. But various things are working together which promise for next year a splendid rink in the park.

Music for the evening's program was most delightful. A boys' trio, consisting of Carl Peterson, violin, Elmer Peterson, clarinet and Raymond Nicholson, piano, received great applause. The Lions club male quartet consisting of L. F. Hough, R. D. Stitzel, D. H. Fullerton and R. L. Geist, accompanied by Mrs. Hough, sang several very entertaining numbers and they too were heartily encored.

The April meeting of the Association will be the last one of this year. Plans are already under way to make that meeting especially fine. The nominating committee will be ready with names to be voted upon as next year's officers. Refreshments will be served.

ANNUAL MEETING MUSICAL CLUB

Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, at the rooms of the Civic and Commerce Association, the Musical club will hold its special annual meeting for the consideration of the year's work.

Entertainment will be furnished by the boys' band under the direction of Mr. Pfock. The boys have played in public before and at that time were much enjoyed. In addition, the committee under Mrs. R. A. Beise will serve tea. It is hoped that a large number of the members will be present.

WASHINGTON-LINCOLN

Parent-Teachers Association Will Meet Friday Evening in Lincoln School

The Washington-Lincoln Parent-Teachers Association will hold its regular meeting on Friday evening at eight o'clock in the Lincoln building. As this is the first evening meeting that the association has held this year, it is desired that an exceptionally large attendance turn out.

A cordial invitation is extended to all members of the other parent-teacher associations of the city and everyone interested, to attend the meeting. Refreshments will be served after the meeting, at which a silver offering will be taken.

The following program will be given:

Musical trio—Hans Pfock, Elmer and Carl Peterson.
Talk—Dr. Joseph Nicholson.
Song—Dr. A. K. Cohen.
Vocal duet—Arlene Hagberg and Hazel Cooper.
Talk—H. F. Michael.
Piano duet—Janet Jackson and Elva Benson.

Dr. E. F. Jamieson was granted a divorce from Jean Florence Yetive Jamieson, in district court recently, the plaintiff charging cruel and inhuman treatment. The couple were married in Minneapolis on April 10th, 1920. There are no children.

Mass Meeting at Lowell School

The mass meeting scheduled for Tuesday evening at the Lowell school to discuss matters pertaining to the high school situation is attracting considerable attention and it is believed a large attendance will be present. The meeting is under the auspices of the Northeast Brainerd improvement league. It is said the Educational committee will have an interesting announcement for tomorrow evening.

YEAR'S MINING ON CUYUNA RANGE

Mining Inspector August Swanson Reports on Production and Shipment, and Accidents

ADDITIONS IN EQUIPMENT

Year's Activity Was Marked by the Toll of Two Lives, Both Underground Accidents

August Swanson, mine inspector of Crow Wing county, in his report on the Cuyuna iron range for the past year, records a decided increase in production and shipment of ore, stripping removed as well as employment.

Some additions have been made in equipment at some of the mines, particularly the Mahanomen mine, where two locomotives and a steam shovel have been added; the Maroca mine, where two locomotives and two steam shovels have been added to the equipment and new offices and shops built. The Sagamore mine has installed a latest and largest model electric shovel.

The year's activity was marked with the toll of two lives, after having been preceded with three years with one each.

The number of mines operated during the year was 16, those not operating 29, making a total number of mines of 45. Number of visits and inspections made by the mine inspector 108. The number of men employed underground is 508. Number of men employed on the surface 104. Number of men employed open pit is 637.

Number of men employed pumping, and repairing in mines not ore producing is 26. Number of men employed ore producing, ore not shipped is 61. The total number of men employed on the range is 1,335.

The number of tons of ore shipped from underground mines was 926,810. Number of tons of ore shipped from open pit mines was 1,283,664, making a total number of tons shipped of 2,220,474.

The number of cubic yards of stripping removed was 2,083,660. The number of fatal accidents was two underground and none on the surface.

LADY MACCABEES

Mrs. Lucy Wilson Tenders Members of Ladies Benefit Association of Maccabees, Luncheon

The Ladies Benefit Association of the Maccabees was agreeably surprised at its last meeting, when, after the business session and initiation, Mrs. Lucy Wilson tendered the members an elaborate luncheon, furnished and prepared entirely by herself.

During the meal several short talks were made and a number of toasts offered. There were about thirty of the ladies present.

MRS. HY. CLARKE FUNERAL

To be Held From Methodist Church, Rev. E. A. Cooke Officiating

The funeral of Mrs. Henry Clarke, who passed away on Wednesday morning, will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Methodist church, Rev. E. A. Cooke officiating. Interment will be made in Evergreen cemetery.

Relatives who have arrived for the funeral include four sisters, Mrs. Fanny Clock and Mrs. Joseph Mills, of Waukesha, Wisconsin; Mrs. Herman Binkle, of Eau Claire, Wis.; and Mrs. Frank Bille, of South Tacoma, Wash.; a nephew, John H. Lumb, also of Waukesha; Mrs. Clarke's sons, Harold and James, of Superior; her daughter Miss Dorothea, teacher in the Atkin schools; and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Clarke, of Ironwood, Michigan.

Anderson-Lukenbach

Miss Mabel C. Lukenbach and Axel A. Anderson were married on Wednesday afternoon, March 12th, at the parsonage of the Clara Lutheran church, Rev. August Samuelson, officiating. They were attended by Carl P. Anderson and Mrs. Ida Hagberg.

The bride wore a sand colored taffeta gown, with hat to match, and carried a shower bouquet of roses.

Following the ceremony the wedding party went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Anderson, 515 South 5th St., where a luncheon was served to twenty guests. The rooms were prettily decorated in carnations and ferns and plants. The evening was spent in cards and Mah Jongg. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts.

The groom is well known in Brainerd, being employed at the Gruenhagen Co., where he has made many friends. The bride has made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hagberg.

Jensen-Ellidge

Peter Jensen and Miss Clara Ellidge were married on March 10th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Roberts, corner of Oak and Seventeenth streets, Rev. August Samuelson performing the ceremony. The witnesses were Henry Roberts and Miss Vera Chrysler.

The newlyweds will make their home on the groom's farm near Sylvan.

Food Sale

A food sale and also sale of aprons and fancy articles will be held by the ladies aid of the Evangelical church, Northeast, Saturday, March 15th, at the E. H. Jones store, beginning at 10 o'clock.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent air and 6 per cent common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, J. E. Johnson, 609 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $20 to $500 per month.

How to Judge Satisfied Owners

Read the used cars advertised for sale in today's papers and you will find a woeful lack of Studebakers. This is the best evidence of satisfied owners that any motor car can have.

When owners are getting good service from their automobiles, they are not offering them for sale, nor trading them in on other cars, hence there are none in the hands of local dealers.

It is also significant that in the year we have sold Studebaker cars, we have never had a used Studebaker car more than a few days at the most and usually we have buyers for them before we take them in. This speaks volumes for the dependability and sturdiness of Studebaker cars.

Let us tell you about them.

MRS. W. H. GEMMELL IN CHIEF ADDRESS

Says That Parenthood is as Surely a Profession as Other Callings So Named

STUDIED FROM ALL ANGLES

Every Parent Should be Interested in Betterment of the Community

The Whittier Parent-Teachers Association held its regular meeting on Tuesday night. Mrs. W. H. Gemmell spoke informally but very earnestly, saying that parenthood is as surely a profession as other callings so named.

It needs to be studied from all angles and Mrs. Gemmell gave names and authors of books that it would be well to read, have placed in the public library or purchase individually. Every parent, furthermore, should be interested in bettering the community, and to do this intelligently, should understand laws relating to children. These laws pertain to feeble-minded and unfortunate children and this in return is related to the whole subject of social hygiene.

The field of the social welfare worker, Miss Loretta Newman, has become so extensive that she cannot do much more than see that the laws pertaining to her line of activity are enforced. There is much need here for a "Big Sister" group and Mrs. Gemmell asked that if anyone would be willing to work with Miss Newman along this line, she would give her name to the Welfare board.

Mrs. Gemmell spoke of the branch of the work so ably covered by the county nurse, Miss Thora Ingebritson.

A point brought out regarding the work of the city nurse, Miss Eula Michael, was that most people in a community are in fairly good health and are able to pay a physician and a nurse if necessary. They also understand about common conditions that are a detriment to the health of children. But they do not give the children the regular and thorough examination along certain lines that is conducted by the school nurse. Her report assists many parents in checking the beginnings of serious trouble that was entirely unsuspected. Announcement will be made later regarding a tag day to contribute toward the city nurse's car.

Dr. C. G. Nordin, as chairman of a park skating rink committee, reported that the protracted warm weather of early winter and the severe cold of January both hindered the work on the rink. But various things are working together which promise for next year a splendid rink in the park.

Music for the evening's program was most delightful. A boys' trio, consisting of Carl Peterson, violin, Elmer Peterson, clarinet and Raymond Nicholson, piano, received great applause. The Lions club male quartet consisting of L. F. Hough, R. D. Stitzel, D. H. Fullerton and R. L. Geist, accompanied by Mrs. Hough, sang several very entertaining numbers and they too were heartily encored.

The April meeting of the Association will be the last one of this year. Plans are already under way to make that meeting especially fine. The nominating committee will be ready with names to be voted upon as next year's officers. Refreshments will be served.

ANNUAL MEETING

MUSICAL CLUB

Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, at the rooms of the Civic and Commerce Association, the Musical club will hold its special annual meeting for the consideration of the year's work.

Entertainment will be furnished by the boys' band under the direction of Mr. Pflock. The boys have played in public before and at that time were much enjoyed. In addition, the committee under Mrs. R. A. Beise will serve tea. It is hoped that a large number of the members will be present.

WASHINGTON-LINCOLN

Parent-Teachers Association Will Meet Friday Evening in Lincoln School

The Washington-Lincoln Parent-Teachers Association will hold its regular meeting on Friday evening at eight o'clock in the Lincoln building. As this is the first evening meeting that the association has held this year, it is desired that an exceptionally large attendance turn out.

A cordial invitation is extended to all members of the other parent-teachers associations of the city and everyone interested, to attend the meeting. Refreshments will be served after the meeting, at which a silver offering will be taken.

The following program will be given:

Musical trio—Hans Pflock, Elmer and Carl Peterson.

Talk—Dr. Joseph Nicholson.

Song—Dr. A. K. Cohen.

Vocal duet—Arlene Hagberg and Hazel Cooper.

Talk—H. F. Michael.

Piano duet—Janet Jackson and Elva Benson.

YEAR'S MINING ON CUYUNA RANGE

Mining Inspector August Swanson Reports on Production and Shipment, and Accidents

ADDITIONS IN EQUIPMENT

Year's Activity Was Marked by the Toll of Two Lives, Both Underground Accidents

August Swanson, mine inspector of Crow Wing county, in his report on the Cuyuna iron range for the past year, records a decided increase in production and shipment of ore, stripping removed as well as employment.

Some additions have been made in equipment at some of the mines, particularly the Mahanomen mine, where two locomotives and a steam shovel have been added; the Maroca mine, where two locomotives and two steam shovels have been added to the equipment and new offices and shops built. The Sagamore mine has installed a latest and largest model electric shovel.

The year's activity was marked with the toll of two lives, after having been preceded with three years with one each.

The number of mines operated during the year was 16, those not operating 29, making a total number of mines of 45. Number of visits and inspections made by the mine inspector 108. The number of men employed underground is 598. Number of men employed on the surface 104. Number of men employed open pit is 637.

Number of men employed pumping, and repairing in mines not ore producing is 26. Number of men employed ore producing, ore not shipped is 61. The total number of men employed on the range is 1,335.

The number of tons of ore shipped from underground mines was 926,810. Number of tons of ore shipped from open pit mines was 1,283,664, making a total number of tons shipped of 2,220,474.

The number of cubic yards of stripping removed was 2,083,660. The number of fatal accidents was two underground and none on the surface.

LADY MACCABEES

Mrs. Lucy Wilson Tenders Members of Ladies Benefit Association of Maccabees, Luncheon

The Ladies Benefit Association of the Maccabees was agreeably surprised at its last meeting, when, after the business session and initiation, Mrs. Lucy Wilson tendered the members an elaborate luncheon, furnished and prepared entirely by herself.

During the meal several short talks were made and a number of toasts offered. There were about thirty of the ladies present.

MRS. HY. CLARKE FUNERAL

To Be Held From Methodist Church, Rev. E. A. Cooke Officiating

The funeral of Mrs. Henry Clarke, who passed away on Wednesday morning, will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the Methodist church, Rev. E. A. Cooke officiating. Interment will be made in Evergreen cemetery.

Relatives who have arrived for the funeral include four sisters, Mrs. Fanny Clock and Mrs. Joseph Mills, of Waukesha, Wisconsin; Mrs. Herman Binkle, of Eau Claire, Wis.; and Mrs. Frank Bille, of South Tacoma, Wash.; a nephew, John H. Lumb, also of Waukesha; Mrs. Clarke's sons, Harold and James, of Superior; her daughter Miss Dorothea, teacher in the Aitkin schools; and Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Clarke, of Ironwood, Michigan.

Anderson-Lukenbach

Miss Mabel C. Lukenbach and Axel A. Anderson were married on Wednesday afternoon, March 12th, at the parsonage of the Clara Lutheran church, Rev. August Samuelson, officiating. They were attended by Carl P. Anderson and Mrs. Ida Hagberg.

The bride wore a sand colored taffeta gown, with hat to match, and carried a shower bouquet of roses.

Following the ceremony the wedding party went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Anderson, 515 South 5th St., where a luncheon was served to twenty guests. The rooms were prettily decorated in carnations and ferns and plants. The evening was spent in cards and Mah Jongg. The bride received many beautiful and useful gifts.

The groom is well known in Brainerd, being employed at the Gruenhagen Co., where he has made many friends. The bride has made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Hagberg.

Jensen-Ellidge

Peter Jensen and Miss Clara Ellidge were married on March 10th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Roberts, corner of Oak and Seventeenth streets, Rev. August Samuelson performing the ceremony. The witnesses were Henry Roberts and Miss Vera Chrysler.

The newlyweds will make their home on the groom's farm near Sylvan.

Food Sale

A food sale and also sale of aprons and fancy articles will be held by the ladies aid of the Evangelical church, Northeast, Saturday, March 15th, at the E. H. Jones store, beginning at 10 o'clock.

NEW LAMP BURNS 94% AIR

Beats Electric or Gas

A new oil lamp that gives an amazingly brilliant, soft, white light, even better than gas or electricity, has been tested by the U. S. Government and 35 leading universities and found to be superior to 10 ordinary oil lamps. It burns without odor, smoke or noise—no pumping up, is simple, clean, safe. Burns 94 per cent air and 6 per cent common kerosene (coal oil).

The inventor, J. E. Johnson, 699 W. Lake St., Chicago, Ill., is offering to send a lamp on 10 days' FREE trial, or even to give one FREE to the first user in each locality who will help him introduce it. Write him today for full particulars. Also ask him to explain how you can get the agency, and without experience or money make $20 to $500 per month.

O'ROSSEN SUITS

The Boyish Form

Call it by its French or its English name, it is the suit mode of the moment, the mode by which suits will again leap to the front ranks of popularity. By these you will know it—by the coat, like a man's suit coat, with tapering lapels by rounded or square corners, slightly incurving seams, one of two buttons, pockets set low.

It chooses pin stripes in every shade of warm brown in gray and black and white. See some of the new ones Saturday.

CUNNINGHAM WITH ARRELL

CHILIAN HEAVY EXPECTED TO BE GOOD CARD

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, March 14.—Quintin Romero, heavyweight champion of Chili, who is being brought to this country by Tex Rickard for a shot at the heavy-weight championship, may turn out to be an attraction just as big as Luis Firpo.

Romero has all the circus color of Firpo, and he has more of an advantage in coming out at a time when a vogue has been established for his race. He has another thing in his favor because he arrives with something of a reputation and considerable noise, while Firpo sneaked in from South America unknown and unheralded.

Firpo, however, had friendly hands to clear the way for him after he got started, but Romero will have to pull himself up practically alone if he succeeds in getting up.

While Firpo was allowed to feast on set-ups, Romero will be forced to prove himself. Rickard says that Romero can't get a shot at Dempsey until he has beaten three fighters to be selected from Jack Renault, George Godfrey, Floyd Johnson and Fred Fulton.

There may be better fighters than the four tentatively selected by Rickard to put the test to Romero, but they are better than the third and fourth-raters that were picked out for Firpo.

Firpo worked up to a championship bout by beating Bill Brennan, Jim Hubbard, Jack McAuliffe, Jack Herman, Jess Willard, Joe Burke, Homer Smith, Charley Weinert and Joe Downey.

Brennan and Willard were old, worn and through when they fought Firpo, and the others were beaten before they went into the ring.

As the outdoor season approaches there is a great demand for another fight between Dempsey and Firpo. The match is what promoters call a "natural," because it needs no steaming up. Firpo can get the match without doing anything more to prove that he would have a better chance to beat Dempsey the second time than he did on the occasion of their first bout.

Firpo knocked Dempsey to his knees twice and blasted him clear out of the ring once and that qualified him then and there for another chance at the title. The belief that Dempsey won the fight by the use of foul tactics was enough to guarantee the success of a second meeting without any further exactions from Firpo.

It is quite possible, however, that a return bout between Dempsey and Firpo could be made secondary in interest to a contest between Romero and Dempsey.

If Romero should knockout Renault, Godfrey, Johnson or Fulton and show the same ferocity of attack, the same style of fighting and the same color that Firpo did against his set-ups, he would become a "natural" for Dempsey.

HUGGINS SAYS

YANKS WILL WIN

DETROIT WILL FINISH SECOND, CLEVELAND THIRD, SAYS

New Orleans, La., March 14.—"The New York Yankees will win the 1934 American league pennant. Detroit will finish second and Cleveland in third place."

Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, who boasts of never having made any rash claims in baseball before, is out with this prophecy.

"Cleveland looks better than Detroit for second place until you come to pitching, and there the Tigers have the edge."

Even if George Sisler is able to return to first base and plays the position as he once did, Huggins thinks little of the chances of the St. Louis Browns, because of the weakness at the third station. He figures they might land in fourth place.

ST. JOHN'S AT

ST. THOMAS MEET

Coach Fred L. Sanborn, of St. John's University, has entered 10 men in the state high school parochial basketball tournament at St. Thomas in St. Paul. The men have had long practice and the first team is working smoothly. Accurate shooting for the net at long and short range has been drilled into the team.

St. John's defeated St. Ann, of Le Sueur, 25 to 13, in its first game at the parochial tournament at St. Thomas. The St. John team gave every evidence of being one of the strong teams of the tournament.

MOST SPORTSMANLIKE PLAYERS IN DISTRICT

The honor of being the most sportsmanlike basketball quint in the high school third district has been awarded Little Falls by Referee Dick Canfield, who officiated at all the games of the district tournament in Bemidji.

St. Cloud was given a large silver basketball mounted on a silver base as trophy for winning the championship of the district.

Radio Is Helping in Reclaiming the Sahara

The conquest of the Sahara has been seriously begun. The development of the radio system enables the caterpillar caravans to keep in touch with the outside world and, if necessary, invoke assistance. French engineers are now studying the system of artesian wells in Australia, by means of which the central desert of that island continent is being slowly but surely conquered.

The Australian territory is divided into eight principal artesian basins, covering a surface of approximately 472,000 square miles. The first artesian well was driven at Bluehill in 1888. In 1904 there were 1,112 such wells in all Australia. Ten years later these had increased to 3,000, while today there are 4,426, of which 1,635 are spouting wells, 1,651 nonspouting and the remainder still under construction.

It is believed that the same system could be applied to the Sahara, thereby reclaiming the land. If this be so, it will insure the construction of the trans-Saharan railway, the plans of which are at present before the French parliament. Thus an immense productive territory will be added to France's colonial empire.—Washington Post.

Making Sugar From Beets

Gardeners who cannot raise sugar cane are interested in a process, devised abroad, for extracting sugar from beets, a process designed especially for the amateur. Great care is exercised in harvesting the roots that the tender skin be not broken. The first operation is to remove all dirt by washing, after which the beets are boiled in water until the skin peels off easily. They are next cut into thin slices, placed in a pan, just covered with water brought to a boil once more and then left to simmer for ten hours. The resulting pulp is then put into a mesh bag and squeezed until all the juice is extracted. The juice is boiled down to a very thick syrup that makes a good substitute for commercial sugar. As the syrup will not keep for more than a few weeks, it is found advisable to make only a small quantity at a time. The roots, however, can be stored for a long period without deteriorating if they are kept dry and free from frost.

DISLIKED GAME OF "PLAYMATES"

By DOROTHY N. DONAHUE

(Copyright, 1934, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

APRIL wasn't the only one that possessed such gorgeous desires. But she was distinctive in that she stuck to them. April wanted a young giant with tender eyes and a strong chin, a scarlet roadster, a drawing room with pearl chandeliers, a great deal of money and a heart of gold; in short, a perfect young gladiator with advantages and a steadfast religion.

She told Colin about her ambitions. Colin was twenty and lived across the street from April. He had played with her all his life; for 15 years in fun, for three in dead seriousness.

He stood with one foot on the threshold of the door, his cap in his hand, the stray look in his eyes, and glowered.

"All right, I hope you find him the very pink of perfection. But he won't be any good. A guy with all that and as good looking as you've disgustingly put him just can't be true-blue. In acquiring the riches and cultivating his beauty he loses all sense of real value and turns cad. You'll find that out."

And Colin was gone.

"Don't be stupid," April called after him, but he didn't hear.

A week later April met the shining knight of her dreams. He came straight from New York.

Gaylord Marchmont liked the shy smile and the dark blue eyes, the softness of the blond hair and the tiny, childish figure.

"Will you ride with me?"

April blushed and rode.

There were many rides. Gaylord was staying on a week or so to straighten things out with Steve Wainwright. He called for April every evening and on the fourth, as April stepped into the car, she looked over and caught Colin peeking out at them. Her eyes shone and her heart sang. "I've found him, Colin. I have found him."

Colin debated whether it would be more censurable to lick Gaylord before a crowd or in private, and let the news leak out afterwards. He decided on the crowd and then went to call on Daisy, whom he hated.

Out in the country with the car spinning along a moonlight illumined road, April lived in a dream.

Gaylord Marchmont removed one hand from the wheel and placed it over April's two white ones.

"Life turns me a crooked dent, little one. Just because I have a name and position that some one covets and because that some one has the money that I covet, I must marry her—Glenna Landford. Ever hear of her? We nearly despise each other, I think, but what must be, must be. I'd be happy as a clam to have you—I wonder if you know I'm going tomorrow and that I think you're the sweetest playmate in the world."

April closed her eyes and relaxed a little and came out of her dream. She wanted to grab his arm and tell him, tearfully, that she didn't know he was only playing a game and that she didn't want to be playmate.

But April was a wise little girl and had just found it out.

"My dear Gay—how silly. Life isn't to blame. It's tradition and a loss of the ability to realize true values. Don't blame the poor old world. It's being—end. (Oh, if Colin could hear), but I won't protest. We've both been just playing. Let it go at that."

April surprised herself.

They drew up to the door an hour later and Gaylord Marchmont looked at April quizzically.

"Tell me, little playmate, what it is in life you really like."

"Me? Like? Why—I guess sunsets and rainbows, violin music—and, why, just living."

"That's just like you. Do you know, do you want to know what Glenna Landford likes—in life? It's amusing."

"I think I know, Gay. She likes long, slender drawing rooms with pearl chandeliers, scarlet roadsters, lap dogs, bonbons and men like you."

"Men like me, April? Are you being nice—or not?"

"Not! Men that let an army of ancestors with musty ideas and family traditions push them into a marriage that they hate—men that don't know themselves or what they want, how to get it or how to think straight. Why, you aren't even square enough to play your own game straight. You have a little fun on the side, a bit of amusement with some little light-headed country girl you call 'Playmate' for conscience's sake. That's what she likes and what she's getting. Good-night, Mr. Marchmont."

After she had gone, Gaylord Marchmont huddled down into his seat, turned up his coat collar and shivered.

"Forty below, and the mercury still dropping. So this is Alaska!"

The next night Colin came over.

"He's gone, is he?"

"Yes."

"If you think I'm going to get down on my knees and murmur that I've been waiting for you, I'm not. I'm going to start all over again. We've been playmates too long. We start as strangers. I'll win you, but I'll do it in my own way, and I'll make you say, 'My dear Colin, you're wonderful.' Instead of 'Don't be stupid, Colin.' So be prepared for a stormy and tempestuous wooing. I'm out for victory. Laugh that off! Good-night."

April sank down into a chair and laughed and cried at intervals.

"So that's to be my punishment. It's rather too bad for Colin, but I'm going to love it."

Changes Will Improve Uniform of the Army

No radical changes have been made in army uniforms by the order General Pershing signed before leaving for Europe, but an entirely new policy in dealing with the uniform of enlisted men is provided for in the amendments to the uniform regulations. Uniforms hereafter will be tailor-made, and commanders will be held responsible for the fit of the uniforms of the enlisted men of their organizations. The color of the cloth will still be olive drab, but a new kind will be substituted for that now in use. The new material is known as melton, has a smooth finish like broadcloth, is highly durable and retains the shape longer than the present cloth. Bronze buttons and devices on the present uniform will be substituted by brass or gold ones, and the officer who desires to make a more flashy appearance can ornament himself with the new trappings, if he desires.

The standing collar, which has been the object of much criticism, is retained, but it is not to exceed two inches in height, depending upon the wearer. It is to be held together with hook and eye. There are specifications for the standing collar which are designed to make it more comfortable. The gorge of the coat is to be cut to fit the base of the neck. The collar is to be of sufficient size at the top to be comfortable and to permit a free movement of the head. When a white collar is worn it should be not to exceed one-fourth displayed and fastened to the collar of the coat.

What Uraeus Circlet Meant in Old Egypt

Statues removed recently from the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen all show the ancient uraeus circlet, the snake-headed band that adorned the brows of the royalties of Egypt. Its history reaches back into the dim past of that great people when the god-kings were supposed to have ruled over the land. Both the cobra and the vulture were sacred head-dresses of the rulers of ancient Egypt, but the cobra is more commonly known. It usually was worn in gold and worn either on the bare forehead or over the crown.

The uraeus also was the basilisk of the Greeks, a fabled lizard-like animal of the desert whose breath and bite were fatal. It was supposed to represent the godliness and divinity of the Egyptian Pharaoh and was the symbol of the principle of immortality. The art of old Egypt employed this sign to signify royalty and divinity in paintings, sculptures and statues.

Dance Lessons at Lunch

Dance men in London have taken to attending dancing school during lunch hours, says a special dispatch to the New York Tribune, but they are very shy about it, according to a number of dancing teachers who have taken studios in the downtown sections.

"Some demand the utmost secrecy about their lessons," said one dancing mistress, "and one has to fix times that will prevent others from seeing them."

"Men in the commercial world seem the most bashful. They come with the strangest excuses, saying the doctor has ordered them to take more exercise, or that they want to learn dancing in order to please their wives."

"About the only excuse that is not put forth is that they want to enjoy themselves as other people do."

The teachers agree, however, that once a captain of industry overcomes his nervousness he can shake a wicked hoof.

The Important Part

The hero and heroine had "dried up" completely in a love scene.

"The moon is up," whispered the prompter from his corner, but no notice was taken of him.

"The moon is up," he repeated. Still the lovers looked around despairingly. More audibly came the voice, "The moon is up," and then, in a loud voice audible to the audience, "The—moon—is—up!"

The hero turned savagely to the prompter. "Yes, I know, I know!" he shouted. "But who says it?"

Iceland's Smart Dogs

Icelandic sheep dogs are never allowed in the house in Iceland, the lack of accommodation being acute in that part of the world.

However, they are said to be excellent house dogs, expert watch dogs, devoted to their masters and always anxious to please.

In Iceland men work these dogs over the rivers at a great distance by simply waving their arms. When their masters sit down the Iceland dogs immediately sit down and lean against them when permitted.

Fifty Years on One Job

John Wallace, seventy-one years old, of Providence, R. I., has worked nearly fifty years on one job in one place. It has been as watchman or general handy employee around the new all-metal desolate plant of the Allen Print works. He has walked, he estimated, 300,000 miles as a part of his job. In that time he has taken only one day vacation and that lasted only one day. He went to Newport, R. I., the summer home of rich society.

ANNING WITH ARRELL

CHILIAN HEAVY EXPECTED TO BE GOOD CARD

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

New York, March 14.—Quintin Romero, heavyweight champion of Chili, who is being brought to this country by Tex Rickard for a shot at the heavyweight championship, may turn out to be an attraction just as big as Luis Firpo.

Romero has all the circus color of Firpo, and he has more of an advantage in coming out at a time when a vogue has been established for his race. He has another thing in his favor because he arrives with something of a reputation and considerable noise, while Firpo sneaked in from South America unknown and unheralded.

Firpo, however, had friendly hands to clear the way for him after he got started, but Romero will have to pull himself up practically alone if he succeeds in getting up.

While Firpo was allowed to feast on set-ups, Romero will be forced to prove himself. Rickard says that Romero can't get a shot at Dempsey until he has beaten three fighters to be selected from Jack Renault, George Godfrey, Floyd Johnson and Fred Fulton.

There may be better fighters than the four tentatively selected by Rickard to put the test to Romero, but they are better than the third and fourth-raters that were picked out for Firpo.

Firpo worked up to a championship bout by beating Bill Brennan, Jim Hubbard, Jack McAuliffe, Jack Herman, Jess Willard, Joe Burke, Homer Smith, Charley Weinert and Joe Downey.

Brennan and Willard were old, worn and through when they fought Firpo, and the others were beaten before they went into the ring.

As the outdoor season approaches there is a great demand for another fight between Dempsey and Firpo. The match is what promoters call a "natural," because it needs no steaming up. Firpo can get the match without doing anything more to prove that he would have a better chance to beat Dempsey the second time than he did on the occasion of their first bout.

Firpo knocked Dempsey to his knees twice and blasted him clear out of the ring once and that qualified him then and there for another chance at the title. The belief that Dempsey won the fight by the use of foul tactics was enough to guarantee the success of a second meeting without any further exactions from Firpo.

It is quite possible, however, that a return bout between Dempsey and Firpo could be made secondary in interest to a contest between Romero and Dempsey.

If Romero should knockout Renault, Godfrey, Johnson or Fulton and show the same ferocity of attack, the same style of fighting and the same color that Firpo did against his set-ups, he would become a "natural" for Dempsey.

HUGGINS SAYS

YANKS WILL WIN

DETROIT WILL FINISH SECOND, CLEVELAND THIRD, SAYS MANAGER

New Orleans, La., March 14.—"The New York Yankees will win the 1936 American league pennant. Detroit will finish second and Cleveland in third place."

Miller Huggins, manager of the Yankees, who boasts of never having made any rash claims in baseball before, is out with this prophecy.

"Cleveland looks better than Detroit for second place until you come to pitching, and there the Tigers have the edge."

Even if George Sisler is able to return to first base and plays the position as he once did, Huggins thinks little of the chances of the St. Louis Browns, because of the weakness at the third station. He figures they might land in fourth place.

ST. JOHN'S AT

ST. THOMAS MEET

Coach Fred L. Sanborn, of St. John's University, has entered 10 men in the state high school basketball tournament at St. Thomas in St. Paul. The men have had long practice and the first team is working smoothly. Accurate shooting for the net at long and short range has been drilled into the team.

St. John's defeated St. Ann, of Le Sueur, 25 to 13, in its first game at the parochial tournament at St. Thomas. The St. John team gave every evidence of being one of the strong teams of the tournament.

MOST SPORTSMANLIKE

PLAYERS IN DISTRICT

The honor of being the most sportsmanlike basketball quint in the high school third district has been awarded Little Falls by Referee Dick Canfield, who officiated at all the games of the district tournament in Bemidji.

St. Cloud was given a large silver basketball mounted on a silver base as trophy for winning the championship of the district.

DISLIKED GAME OF "PLAYMATES"

By DOROTHY N. DONAHUE

(©, 1934, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

APRIL wasn't the only one that possessed such gorgeous desires. But she was distinctive in that she stuck to them. April wanted a young giant with tender eyes and a strong chin, a scarlet roadster, a drawing room with pearl chandeliers, a great deal of money and a heart of gold; in short, a perfect young gladiator with advantages and a steadfast religion.

She told Colin about her ambitions. Colin was twenty and lived across the street from April. He had played with her all his life; for 15 years in fun, for three in dead seriousness.

He stood with one foot on the threshold of the door, his cap in his hand, the stray look in his eyes, and glowered.

"All right. I hope you find him the very pink of perfection. But he won't be any good. A guy with all that and as good looking as you've disgustingly put him just can't be true-blue. In acquiring the riches and cultivating his beauty he loses all sense of real value and turns cad. You'll find that out."

And Colin was gone.

"Don't be stupid," April called after him, but he didn't hear.

A week later April met the shining knight of her dreams. He came straight from New York.

Gaylord Marchmont liked the shy smile and the dark blue eyes, the softness of the blond hair and the tiny, childish figure.

"Will you ride with me?"

April blushed and rode.

There were many rides. Gaylord was staying on a week or so to straighten things out with Steve Vainwright. He called for April every evening and on the fourth, as April stepped into the car, she looked over and caught Colin peeking out at them. Her eyes shone and her heart sang. "I've found him, Colin. I have found him."

Colin debated whether it would be more sensational to lick Gaylord before a crowd or in private, and let the news leak out afterwards. He decided on the crowd and then went to call on Daisy, whom he hated.

Out in the country with the car spinning along a moonlight illumined road, April lived in a dream.

Gaylord Marchmont removed one hand from the wheel and placed it over April's two white ones.

"Life turns me a crooked deal, little one. Just because I have a name and position that some one covets and because that some one has the money that I covet, I must marry her—Glenna Landford. Ever hear of her? We nearly despise each other, I think, but what must be, must be. I'd be happy as a clam to have you—I wonder if you know I'm going tomorrow and that I think you're the sweetest playmate in the world."

April closed her eyes and relaxed a little and came out of her dream. She wanted to grab his arm and tell him, tearfully, that she didn't know he was only playing a game and that she didn't want to be playmate.

But April was a wise little girl and had just found it out.

"My dear Gay—how silly. Life isn't to blame. It's tradition and a loss of the ability to realize true values. Don't blame the poor old world. It's being—end. (Oh, if Colin could hear), but I won't preach. We've both been just playing. Let it go at that."

April surprised herself.

They drew up to the door an hour later and Gaylord Marchmont looked at April quizzically.

"Tell me, little playmate, what it is in life you really like."

"Me? Like? Why—I guess sunsets and rainbows, violin music—and, why, just living."

"That's just like you. Do you know, do you want to know what Glenna Landford likes—in life? It's amusing."

"I think I know, Gay. She likes long, slender drawing rooms with pearl chandeliers, scarlet roadsters, lap dogs, bonbons and men like you."

"Men like me, April? Are you being nice—or not?"

"Not! Men that let an army of ancestors with musty ideas and family traditions push them into a marriage that they hate—men that don't know themselves or what they want, how to get it or how to think straight. Why, you aren't even square enough to play your own game straight. You have a little fun on the side, a bit of amusement with some little light-headed country girl you call 'Playmate' for conscience's sake. That's what she likes and what she's getting. Good-night, Mr. Marchmont."

After she had gone, Gaylord Marchmont huddled down into his seat, turned up his coat collar and shivered.

"Forty below, and the mercury still dropping. So this is Alaska!"

The next night Colin came over.

"He's gone, is he?"

"Yes."

"If you think I'm going to get down on my knees and murmur that I've been waiting for you, I'm not. I'm going to start all over again. We've been playmates too long. We start as strangers. I'll win you, but I'll do it in my own way, and I'll make you say, 'My dear Colin, you're wonderful, instead of 'Don't be stupid, Colin.' So be prepared for a stormy and tempestuous wooing. I'm out for victory. Laugh that off! Good-night."

April sank down into a chair and laughed and cried at intervals.

"So that's to be my punishment. It's rather too bad for Colin, but I'm going to love it."

Changes Will Improve Uniform of the Army

No radical changes have been made in army uniforms by the order General Pershing signed before leaving for Europe, but an entirely new policy in dealing with the uniform of enlisted men is provided for in the amendments to the uniform regulations. Uniforms hereafter will be tailor-made, and commanders will be held responsible for the fit of the uniforms of the enlisted men of their organizations. The color of the cloth will still be olive drab, but a new kind will be substituted for that now in use. The new material is known as melton, has a smooth finish like broadcloth, is highly durable and retains the shape longer than the present cloth. Bronze buttons and devices on the present uniform will be substituted by brass or gold ones, and the officer who desires to make a more flashy appearance can ornament himself with the new trappings, if he desires.

The standing collar, which has been the object of much criticism, is retained, but it is not to exceed two inches in height, depending upon the wearer. It is to be held together with hook and eye. There are specifications for the standing collar which are designed to make it more comfortable. The gorge of the coat is to be cut to fit the base of the neck. The collar is to be of sufficient size at the top to be comfortable and to permit a free movement of the head. When a white collar is worn it should be not to exceed one-fourth displayed and fastened to the collar of the coat.
